As Chairperson for the Wayne Wheelfest Commission, I would like to take this opportunity to remind everyone to mark their calendars for the upcoming Wheelfest Festival. A complete schedule of events can be found elsewhere in this publication. Planning for this year's event started immediately after Wheelfest 2008 was over and I am proud to say that I believe we have something to offer for everyone in the way of entertainment, crafts, activities and of course delicious food and thirst quenching beverages for young and old.

I would also like to take this time to explain why the festival is essential to the community and also dispel some misconceptions that are floating around.

The festival offers more than just live entertainment, it also enriches the community by offering an opportunity for many local civic and service groups to promote their organization and increase public awareness of their services to the community. Whether these groups use the Wheelfest for fundraising, membership recruitment or promoting their services, we all stand to benefit. It's not always easy to measure quality of life, but having a vibrant community certainly The festival also brings helps. people into town which can benefit the local businesses. Even if they don't patronize a particular store during the festival, hopefully they will return in the next few weeks. Then it's up to the merchant to provide the goods and service to make them a lifelong customer.

Sadly, I have also heard some people voice their opinion that it is inappropriate for the City to throw a party after having undergone such severe cuts in staffing levels to balance the budget. Let me be very clear about this point. Eliminating the festival would not have saved even one job. While the City has allocated a small portion of DDA funds to help offset some of the expenses that will be incurred, the bulk of the festival expenses are paid for by fundraisers, vendor set down fees, sponsorships, button sales, beer sales, car show donations and people who advertise in the brochure. It is also important for people to understand that as much as we need and appreciate the support we receive from our sponsors, typically the sponsorship fee doesn't actually cover the true cost of the sponsored event. It's because of this that we sell the Entertainment Buttons. For a mere $8.00, you can purchase an Entertainment Button to help cover the expenses of the festival. Wearing this button will allow you up close access to all of the shows in the entertainment area. That's right, one button provides you with four days of entertainment! I don't know anywhere else where you could enjoy such great entertainment for just $2.00 a day.

K&S Auto where racing runs in the family

You probably know K&S Auto is a great place for general auto repairs including brakes, tune ups, air conditioning, oil changes and even installing engines. K&S Auto, a NAPA auto care center, has been keeping cars on the road since 1984. Owner Ray Kull and his three man staff, including Ray's brother Jim, work on about 40 cars a week at their location on the southwest corner of Wayne Road and Annapolis. But did you know they also work on custom hot rods?

In fact, the Kull family has five drag racers. Ray and Jim not only own and race their own cars, they have passed down their need for speed to their kids -- Ray's son, Steven, and Jim's kids, Joshua and Samantha. On weekends from April to September you can find them at Milan Dragway racing their own cars.

"We're all motor heads," he said. Ray races a dragster. His son races a 1964 Chevelle station wagon. When they aren't racing, they are repairing or modifying their cars. They rebuild the engines and replace the tires about once a year.

Drag racing is a race between two cars that begins at a standing start done on a 1/4 mile straight track. Ray said his car can run the track in 7.7 seconds and reaches up to 172 mph. "I like speed," he said. But it's important to stay safe too. Racers must take safety precautions. They must have a certified chassis and roll bars. Drivers wear helmets and fire suits with gloves and shoes. They also have to be licensed which means they have to pass a physical and a driving test.

Ray is a 1977 graduate of Wayne Memorial High School. The first time he raced was in his senior year. He won the high school drag racing nationals in the spring of 1977 driving his best friend Gary Good's car, a 1969 Cougar. Ray and Gary both took turns in the car and Ray's time was better. "I went faster in Gary's car then he did so he let me race," he said. "Gary Good was a good guy." "We were just a bunch of young kids out there having fun," he said. Unfortunately, Gary died at age 23 in a car accident.

That was his first but not the last time Ray was behind the wheel of a race car.

"I've been involved in some kind of racing ever since," he said. "I've always been mechanical. I've been around cars ever since I can remember. I've laid under cars since I was 5 years old."

You can watch members of the Kull family race at Milan Dragway on August 2nd, 9th, 16th and 30th. K&S Auto Service is open from 8 a.m. - 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

For more information, please contact K&S Auto Service at 734-595-1550.

Breaking down the food Label

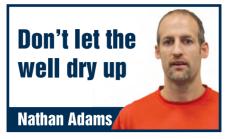

Step 1: The serving size is the section of the label that tells you what constitutes a serving of a product and the number of servings contained within the package.

Step 2: This section contains the total number of calories in one serving and calories from fat. The Dietary Guidelines for Americans recommends that no more than 30% of your total daily calorie intake should be derived from fat. For example, in this macaroni and cheese fat makes up 44% of the serving - not good!

Step 3: Total fat: Limit saturated and trans fat. Maximize polysaturated and monosaturated Cholesterol: It is recommended that you consume no more than 300 mg of cholesterol each day.

Sodium: It is recommended that adults consume no more than 2,400 mg of sodium each day.

Total Carbohydrates: Carbohydrates should make up 50-60% of your total calorie intake for the day. Get at least 25 grams of dietary fiber per day and keep sugars in check below 30% of total carbohydrate per serving (16% in the macaroni & cheese - looks good!).

Protein: Protein should make up 20-30% of your daily caloric intake.

Step 4: Consume many of these nutrients in this section!!

Step 5: The footnote is helpful for people who are monitoring their daily intake of calories and/or nutrients. This will tell you amounts of total fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium, total carbohydrates, and dietary fiber needed based on a 2,000 and/or 2,500 calorie diet.

Step 6: The percent Daily Value is a helpful guide because it allows you to compose the nutritional value of food products, evaluate whether a food has too much (e.g., sodium is high on this mac & cheese) or too little (e.g., no dietary fiber in this mac & cheese) of a particular nutrient, and determine how well it fits into your overall diets.

Warning! Many people look at the "per serving" amount of calories and base their eating on that. However, if you eat all this macaroni and cheese, you consumed a total of 500 calories. That's 1/4 of total calories accepted on a 2,000 calorie diet!

Taking the time to understand food labels is crucial for your health, weight loss, sleep, and daily performance in work or exercise! This can be a tedious routine to do but eventually it will become easier. Please contact me at (734) 721-7400 or at and I will walk you through it!

Schools look for more success in 21st century

By Jenny Johnson

It was a full room for the first meeting of the 21st Century Schools Committee. From state officials and the former state superintendent to administrators, staff and parents of the school district, everyone was there to talk about the best interest of the 13,000 students in the Wayne Westland Community School District.

The Wayne Westland Board of Education passed a resolution to create a 21st Century Schools Committee that will meet and make recommendations on how to continue with the tradition of academic excellence in the face of financial uncertainty. As a result of the bleak economy in Michigan, the school district is facing a potential $10-15 million shortfall by the 2010-2011 school year.

"This should be viewed as an opportunity driven by a need," said Jeff Rahmberg, Consultant, Rahmberg, Stover and Associates.

"We need to embrace change rather than fear change," said Dr. Gregory Baracy, Superintendent.

The committee has been created to assess not only the financial status of the district but to also help guide students to success. With the students' best interest as the goal, the group discussed ways the district can make itself better within a constrained budget.

"We want to have Wayne Westland

"This should be viewed as an opportunity driven by a need." Jeff Rahmberg continue to be a lighthouse district," said State Representative Richard LeBlanc.

The committee will review and discuss building use and demographics, learning configurations, attendance boundaries and additional educational options for students.

"It's a new world and we have to figure it out," said State Representative Marc Corriveau.

Former State Superintendent Tom Watkins said, "We can't tax our way or cut our way out of this mess. We need to re-imagine a new education system." He said we need to prepare students for jobs where they think and not lift. Our students also need to be able to compete with students in Brazil, Russia, India, and China, not just the student in the next desk.

Watkins said, "What we once had is now gone. We are the calvary. No one is coming to our rescue. We're it. It's time to set sail boldly into the 21st century."

For more information on the 21st Century Schools Committee, please visit the Wayne Westland Community School District website at www.wwcsd.com.

Zebra cadets named best in State

By Jenny Johnson

Wayne Memorial is top in the State. Roger Tanner and Brianna Winn, both members of the Wayne Memorial High School JROTC were named best male and female cadets in the State of Michigan at the JROTC Cadet Leadership Challenge (JCLC) in Alpena. They competed with almost 600 JROTC cadets from over 50 Michigan schools. A total of 23 Wayne Memorial JROTC students attended this challenge.

"They got a real world application of leadership," said 1st Sgt. Steven LeHaine, senior Army instructor. LeHaine said to have both the male and female top cadet in the state is quite an accomplishment.

Cadets had to quickly develop a chain of command and participate in eight days of barrack life including rising at 5 a.m., eating in the chow hall at 6 a.m. and spending the day in a variety of training exercises including repelling 40 feet down a building, river rafting, a confidence course, navigation and a one night camp out in pup tents as well as science and career planning.

"It's like being at home with chores," said Brianna Winn, top female cadet, instead of being on vacation.

Stephen McNamara, senior at Wayne Memorial and battalion commander of JROTC said, "You get to experience military life."

You bond with people you never thought you would," said Roger Tanner, senior, top male cadet award winner.

You also get to have experiences you wouldn't have otherwise. "Repelling off a 40 foot tower. You wouldn't think you get to do that in everyday life," Hannah Plumley, senior, executive officer JROTC said.

What did they learn? How to get along with people, communicate better and time management. As each took a turn as company leader, they had the challenge of being accountable for up to 100 cadets.

"The main goal of JCLC is to nurture cadets with no leadership experience into becoming leaders in one week," said Tanner.

They said JCLC was a great experience that you like more once you leave and have a chance to reflect on all that you accomplished.

"It builds up your pride," said Plumley.

They all plan to attend college after high school graduation. Tanner will enlist in the Army as a 2nd Lieutenant after college. They all said JROTC has made a big impression on them.

JROTC is a one hour class offered to high school students but there are lots of opportunities for cadets to become more involved, LeHaine said. They can be on the color guard, drill team, Raider team, honor guard or help with the JROTC's many community service activities. For more information on the JROTC program at Wayne Memorial High School, please visit their website at http://wwcsd.net/~lahaines/.

By: Erica Perdue

When attending a community event in the City of Wayne, it is always great to see how many people are there to volunteer and help out. It is especially great when those people are teenagers who are making the choice to assist those around them! At many events the Junior Civitans are present, generously lending their helping hands. organization consists of students in grades 6-12 who are looking for ways to help the community. They promote great attitudes and positive actions to those around them. They do a lot of work with the elementary schools in the district and family fun nights. Josh Bradford, senior this year at Wayne Memorial High School, is the current president of the Junior Civitans. He has been the president of the organization for five months, and has been involved with the program since his 6th grade school year. He said, "Junior Civitans is a great way to help your community, and also have fun. It also looks great on college applications and awards scholarships." All of the students involved in the program find pride in all of the hard work they do in the community. Not only do they attend community events to help, they often hold their own fundraisers in the city that provide fun times for everyone! Bradford said that his favorite activity the organization does is the haunted house that they put together in October. He explained that, "we build our own haunted house and everyone helps to work on it, it's a lot of fun!" The Junior Civitans are looking for new members, any students in 6th-12th grade are encouraged to join in on the community fun! Bradford emphasized that, "being a part of Junior Civitans really helped me become more of a leader in everything I do." The organization provides a great way to be involved in the community, meet new people, experience new things, and feel what it is like to be a big part in helping out!

Cruisin' Michigan Avenue a success

A great time was had by all who attended the second annual Cruisin' Michigan. More spectators and cruisers than last year enjoyed the parade of classic and new cars that cruised down Michigan Avenue through five cities including Wayne. Concerts and car shows along the route helped make the day festive. Photos by John P. Rhaesa of The Wayne Dispatch

Out and about around Wayne

Saying goodbye and buying one last item at the Acorn Shop...we found fellow shopper, Barbara Heidmann, wife of the late Rev. Kurt Heidmann, who was a Councilman in Wayne for many years. Seems that Acorn owner, Kimberly Loveless, knew the Heidmann's daughter, Linda, so it was fun catching up with the fortunes of all three Heidmann offspring.

Linda plays with the Des Moines Symphony and the Iowa State Opera. She teaches violin and viola to about 40 students. She's now Linda Benoit and her husband, John, is a professor at Iowa's Simpson College.

Theresa is manager of the rehab department at Garden City Hospital. She has two children, Amanda and Adam Mover.

Albert is a Realtor in Arlington. VA. He and his wife, Jodee, have a one year old son, Kurt.

Mrs. Heidmann is a longtime member of Wayne's Commission on Aging.

Our Wayne Garden Walk was a spectacular success. Between 160 and 170 people took to the streets to see 'The Gardens of Wayne.' Everyone agreed it was the best ever. The walkers liked seeing "such a beautiful part of the city." Not only was the walk successful, we attracted four new members for our club. According to Bev Woodard, many requests were made from 'gardeners' who want to be on the next walk. In addition to the gardens that were on display, as you went from one to another you saw creative gardening of all types along the way.

McClinton, of Garden Fantasy Greenhouse on Haggerty, is also a vendor at our Wednesday Farmer's Market. She's amazed at the crowds we've been attracting. Seems Belleville has a Market, but nowhere near the people in attendance that we're getting in Wayne. Isn't it nice to know our Farmer's Market is such a draw?

At the Senior Center, The Golden Hour Club is making plans for their Wheelfest Bake Sale. Once again they'll feature cookies, brownies and specialty breads. Their annual Bingo will be on Saturday, between 12 noon and 3 p.m. Bingo workers are: Ellen Snell, Elsie Fulford, Ruby McDougall, Alice Herbst, and Bob Smith.

Golden Hour, together with Dairy Queen, sponsor "the Diamond of the Community" honoring a Senior who has contributed to the well being of the City of Wayne.

A Memorial Luncheon was held on July 16 at the Senior Center. Those who were remembered on that day were: Leta Arvin, Sarah Clayton, Nettie Hurley, Evelyn Lynch, Albert Wrobel, Carol Hunter, and Lottie Carlysle. Mrs. Carlysle was a lovely lady whom I got to know quite well. She came to us here in the United Garden Designer, Collette | States as a young German war bride. Her joyous nature brought | happiness to everyone who knew her. July being Lottie's birthday month, her daughter. Jackie Amiadi of California, sent money toward the luncheon.

Seven plants were put in the Center's Memorial Garden and Bonita Wojewski read two touching poems as part of the ceremony.

July 4th and a gathering of Biddle St. neighbors celebrated Tom Dobrowolski's retirement. After 23 years at Unistrut, it was party time for Tom along with many friends and family members. Large (or small) among the partygoers were four of Pam and Tom's growing brood of grandchildren. There was Lily, Sammy, with his Boston Red Sox shirt, his sister, Sophie, and the newest member of the Dobrowolski family, little Aria Hazel. Congratulations on your retirement, Tom...we hope you and Pam have fun traveling...and babysitting.

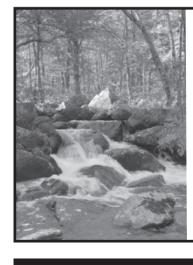

Thanks to Tom Burton for bailing | Union.

us out of a messy (are there any other kind?) plumbing problem. We so appreciate your help. Brings to mind the old adage..."You've tried the rest, now try the best."...Burton's.

Only 33 cookbooks left and Suzie Hammons wants you to buy one. It's a very special cookbook...The Alissa Jennings Cookbook. Alissa, as you know, is the brave young Hoover School student battling a malignant brain tumor. The mothers and teachers at Hoover put together a book of their favorite recipes. It's just $10.00 and all the proceeds will help pay for Alissa's uncovered medical bills.

Generosity has always been a hallmark of the people in Wayne...so please dig in your pocket for a 'ten spot' and buy a cookbook to help Alissa. Contact Suzie Hammons at suszee@aol.com for your Alissa Jennings Cookbook.

Donations can also be made for Alissa at the Wayne-Westland Credit Have Members / Owners. Credit Unions are cooperative financial institutions. This means that everyone who opens an account shares ownership in the Credit Union.

Are Nonprofit Organizations. Credit Unions' mission is to provide affordable services for members. Profits are returned to members through dividends and lower cost services.

Are Democratically Controlled by Members. Credit Unions are governed by a volunteer Board of Directors, which makes decisions on the types and costs of services provided. Each Credit Union member has one vote and can run for election to the Board or Committees.

Charge Less for Services. Credit Unions tend to offer accounts with low or no monthly fees or minimum balance requirements; and to charge lower loan interest rates than banks.

Are Federally Insured. Each Credit Union account is insured up to $250,000 by the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund, which is managed by the National Credit Union Administration.

Banks

Have Customers. Bank customers are entitled to use the bank's services. Customers do not share ownership in the bank.

Are For Profit Corporations. Banks make profits for their shareholders, usually a small group of investors.

Are Controlled by Private Investors. Banks are governed by a paid Board of Directors, which makes decisions on the types and costs of services the bank will provide. Customers have no vote or authority in how the bank operates.

Charge More for Services. Banks generally offer accounts with higher fees and minimum balance requirements; and charge higher loan interest rates than Credit Unions.

Are Federally Insured. Each bank account is insured up to $250,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.
