Wayne Memorial welcomes new athletic director

By Carolyn Marnon
and Ryan Wright

Married 14 years to his middle-school sweetheart, Jason Malloy and his wife, Ornella, have been together since middle school. They have two daughters, Ariana (age 11) and Jada (age 9). "I love my family. I love spending time with them. I love being a husband and a father," says Jason as he opens up about himself to share a bit about himself with the community.

Jason is the new Athletic Director at Wayne Memorial High School. Prior to this position, he was the athletic director at Robichaud High School in Dearborn Heights. He also served there as head football coach. His career started in 2005 as assistant coach/defensive coordinator at Robichaud. He went on to coach at Ypsi Lincoln, was assistant head coach at Ann Arbor Pioneer, became head coach at Ypsi High School and then took an opportunity to coach at Concordia University and Wayne State as an assistant defensive line coach.

Graduating from Western Michigan University with an elementary education background, Jason has been a 5th grade teacher. "It was a great opportunity for me. I love kids, and I love impacting kids. I just felt like I began to grow outside of the classroom as a coach, and I wanted my impact to be much larger and with the kids that I was working with on the football field." When he got the opportunity to get his master's degree in Sports Administration, he was able to go back to Robichaud. "I was able to help change the culture, the mindset. Some of the facilities we were able to renovate some things and just put a new face on Robichaud....We started an Athletic Hall of Fame there which was phenomenal, not only for the great athletes from there, but it was phenomenal for our community we were able to just draw back our alumni to want to be a part of the things that we were doing in the Athletic Department. So it was a great learning curve me as an athletic director putting some of the things that I have done in the past as a football coach to work as an athletic director, just kind of see the change in the direction we were going in.

Jason Malloy is the new Athletic Director at Wayne Memorial High School.

"I had an opportunity to go to Southfield High School as an assistant AD." He was soon able to take over as the AD which he says was a great opportunity for him. "One of the top schools in the state of Michigan where we were again able to change some facilities around. Our girls program went to the state finals and we were able to do a lot of great things at Southfield."

"What drew me to Wayne Memorial was the opportunity to come back close to home. Me growing up in this area, living in the area, close to the area, gives me an opportunity to be really vested in the community."

He goes on to say, "it's an exciting time. The kids are awesome. When you have someone like Greg Ambrose (the former Athletic Director at WMHS) who has been here for a while now gives me an opportunity to come into what he's already established. I think through my experience, there are some things that I can put in place that I can just add to the experience of our sports program, so we have a solid foundation here. I'm just excited to be here and to put my stamp on the athletic program in the community."

Jason has found the staff to be "awesome" and very welcoming. "I can tell the culture here is a very friendly culture and welcoming. The kids have been awesome in their off-season training. They've been working hard." He's excited to be part of the long tradition of the Zebra family.

In the short-term, Jason would like the Zebra athletic program to be recognized as competitive. He also wants to build great relationships with the student athletes, the parents and the community. "I'm a relationship person. One of my favorite quotes is 'They don't care what you know until they know that you care.'" He wants the kids to understand that being a student athlete does more for them than just playing the sport. "I'm always calling myself a life coach. I'm one of the biggest competitors you may ever meet. If we're playing one-on-one or throwing paper in a basket, I'm trying to win, but ultimately that's not what we're trying to do with our student-athletes. We're trying to prepare them for life. To be better husbands and better wives and better, you know, granddaughters and daughters. Those are the things that we hope to instill through sports."

Jason's job as athletic director, he says, is to coach the coaches up so they can maximize their potential to reach the student athletes and to build relationships. He wants everyone to know that when you come to play Wayne Memorial, "we are going to compete."

Long-term, Jason wants to be sending student athletes to college on scholarships. He wants to position them to go to two-year or four-year schools with the character foundation of hard work learned through athletics. "Our job is to teach them to be a holistic student."

When he's not working, Jason loves to fish, an activity he took up a few years ago. He finds the water relaxing. He loves the challenge of trying to find what kind of bait he needs and what he needs to do to try to catch the fish. "Sometimes not even catching a fish is good as well."

Another cornerstone of his life is working with the youth at his church. "I believe that God has led me in the position that I am in to impact young people not only in the church, but in the school. I really value my position."

School Superintendent update

By Carolyn Marnon

Wayne Westland Community School District Superintendent Dr. Shelley Holt, who was put on paid administrative leave on June 20 pending an investigation into allegations made against her, filed a $2 million lawsuit against Wayne Westland Community Schools, Board of Trustees of Wayne Westland Community Schools, David Cox, Mark Neal, Carol Middel, Melandie Hines, Shawna Walker, Frederick Weaver and Tom Buckalew on July 15. According to a press release from Mario Morrow and Associates, "The foundation of her complaint stems from the School District retaliating against her for reporting violations of federal and state laws governing the operation of the district."

The Honorable Craig S. Strong, Third Judicial Circuit Judge of Michigan, issued a Temporary Restraining Order and Order to Show Cause on July 16. The court determined Dr. Holt has a likelihood of success on the merits of her claims, she will suffer irreparable harm and loss if the Defendants' violation of the Open Meetings Act continues unabated, she has no adequate remedy at law, her due process has been violated by the Defendants conduct because of the secret nature of proceedings conducted against her, and she will suffer greater injury from the denial of preliminary injunctive relief than Defendants will suffer from granting such relief.

A restraining order was issued to block further action on the part of the Board of Trustees pending a hearing in accordance with the requirements of the Open Meetings Act. The Defendants are prohibited from continuing administrative leave and disclosing confidential information about Dr. Holt to third parties until the hearing for preliminary injunction or further order of the court.

Dr. Holt is granted leave to commence discovery immediately, including the deposition of Defendants and persons who have filed complaints against her.

The Defendants must turn over

Volunteer painters being sought to help Friends

By Carolyn Marnon

Volunteers are being sought for the 23rd Annual Friends: People Helping People event in Wayne on Saturday, September 7. FPHP helps residents, usually elderly or disabled, to paint and spruce up the outside of their homes.

Neighbors usually nominate a homeowner for the assistance. A committee goes out to view all the homes and evaluate how much help would be needed. They determine what would need to be done, what would be appropriate to do and how much of the work the group can handle. The homes to be considered must have a homeowner. Homes with a landlord are not eligible.

The 2019 home belongs to a disabled couple. Before the official paint party on September 7, volunteers will power wash the home and do any caulking or repairs of old wood needed. On paint day, all who wish to volunteer are asked to meet at HYPE Athletics Western Wayne, 4635 Howe Rd, at 8:30 a.m. Breakfast will be served and then everyone will be told the location of the house. Volunteers will receive a free t-shirt to wear. If you would like to volunteer but have never painted before, there will be instructors on-site to teach proper house-painting techniques. A coat of paint will go on in the morning, lunch will be served (normally pizza), and then a second coat of paint goes on in the afternoon. Volunteers should expect to be done by 2:00 p.m. You do not have to stay the whole event. You can come paint in the morning and leave when you need to.

Everything is donated to FPHP.

If there is rain on September 7, the event will be rescheduled for September 14.

If you would like to volunteer, please call Wayne City Hall (734) 722-2000 or Al Damitio (734) 787-1870.

Roof, Narcan and circulation updates

By Carolyn Marnon

The Youth Room had to be closed recently for a few days because of issues with the leaking roof. Thankfully, the Wayne Public Library is now in the midst of getting the roof replaced. Replacement work began in early July; it is estimated that work will be done by the end of August.

Library Director Jody Wolak says “We are looking forward to a cozy fall with no leaks!”

Jody reports that “The library is looking into getting Narcan for the staff to have on hand in case of emergencies (like we have an AED machine). I’ve reached out to the county about getting a supply and getting training, but we don’t have anything in place yet.”

Good news! The Wayne Public Library had over 35,000 item check-outs last year (July 2018-June 2019). This is up 8% over the previous year, and the first year in at least six years that there has been a circulation increase.

Community helps students and teachers go back to school

By Carolyn Marnon

Although it seems like summer just started, it's already August and time to think about getting the kids ready to go back to school. For students and teachers, this can be a costly event. So many school supplies and backpacks to buy, getting the kids registered and making sure all those plans you had for summer activities are still carried out.

Two Wayne residents took it upon themselves to start school supply drives but with very different focuses. Here are their stories:

Krissy's Pantry is about more than dogs and cats

Jackie Olwean wanted to help local families by hosting a Back to School Backpack Drive targeted to elementary-aged students. Her goal is to receive and fill 50 backpacks for struggling families. "Most of us know how hard it can be to try to fit school supplies into an already extremely tight budget!" wrote Jackie on the Facebook page she runs called "Krissy's Pantry." Krissy's Pantry collects pet food and pet supplies which Jackie then delivers to local residents (mostly elderly and disabled) who need some help taking care of their beloved pets.

The cut-off date for donations to this drive is August 16. Donations can be dropped off at ICON Computers, 35858 W. Michigan Ave, or Jackie can pick them up at your convenience.

The following is a generic list of supplies needed:

- Glue sticks

- 24 count boxes of crayons
- Index cards
- Hand held pencil sharpeners

The filled backpacks will be given away during a raffle that takes place on Sunday, August 25, at 1:00 p.m. at ICON Computers. The event will be set up in the parking lot, so attendees are asked to not park in the parking lot.

If you are so moved, Jackie would appreciate any donations to Krissy's Pantry you may have. "We're still here," says Jackie. "Outreach has become increasingly difficult due to the lack of donations coming in. Sadly, the hardest thing for me to do is to have to tell people I can't help. If anyone would like to donate, the following is a list of what we are in need of: canned and dry dog food, dog treats and chew bones, puppy pads, dog toys, canned and dry cat food and kitty litter." This is an ongoing collection throughout the year. Donations can be dropped off for Krissy's Pantry at ICON Computers anytime they are open.

Community can start with a kid

Brooke Johnson will be a junior at Wayne Memorial High School next month. After attending the Civitan Youth Leadership and Diversity Conference in Angola, Indiana last month where she learned about ongoing issues in education, Brooke came home to become the change she wanted to see. With the mission of "helping shape the community's smallest hands to do great things" she started a Facebook page called "Community Circle" to assist her in a project of collecting school supplies for the 2019-2020 school year that would be delivered to 179 upper and lower elementary school teachers this month.

"I know that many students, especially in the Wayne-Westland Community School District, struggle to acquire the supplies necessary to be successful in their studies. I also know that teachers struggle with being able to provide these supplies to their students because they have minimal funding and resources. To try to lessen this issue, I have decided to make care packages for each classroom (upper and lower elementary) in Wayne-Westland. These care packages will include extra school supplies for teachers to give to students as they see necessary. Although it is just something small, I am hoping that this donation will relieve some of the burdens on low socioeconomic status students, as well as our educators," wrote Brooke on the gofundme page she also created.

Brooke was able to enlist businesses to help her by being drop-off locations for the collection. These included Karma Coffee and Kitchen, Helium Studio, O'Dell Chiropractic, Toarmina's Pizza and Tim Hortons. She also collected supplies during the Wednesday night concerts in Goudy Park. She also set up an Amazon Wishlist from which she received donations. The deadline for donations was August 3.

Brooke looked at class supply lists and the number of teachers on each school's website to determine which supplies to collect and how many.

The most donated item was glue sticks. "Having a surplus of items is okay, as I will just add extra to the care packages," said Brooke. "One item that people seem to not be donating as much as we hoped for would probably be dry erase markers. Many classes have students using dry erase boards for activities and those markers are actually costly but essential for the student to have."

The biggest challenge with this event was marketing and getting the word out about what she was trying to do. With plans to continue this supply drive next year, Brooke says "I will definitely be starting the campaign sooner next year. That way it will give me more time to market it. It is my hope that this event will grow each year and reach more and more classrooms throughout the district. I would like to add the special education classrooms for next year, and eventually be able to be big enough to reach junior high and high schools."

"Every person who has reached out has helped this campaign grow and for that, I am extremely grateful," Brooke said.

"I have learned that we live in an amazing community with caring community members that would love to help out with anything that we need," said this student who aspires to be a 5th-grade teacher ("because my 5th-grade teacher was the best teacher; she made me enjoy school.") It also has helped me notice that even though I was fortunate to have parents who were able to provide me and my siblings' school supplies every year, I know there are some parents or guardians that might not be able to do that, and I am happy to help."

As she posted on the Community Circle facebook page "Be the change you wish to see in the world."

Summer concerts continue to entertain

By Carolyn Marnon

Wednesday night concerts in Goudy Park have a strong following. The July line-up had people dancing in front of the stage as well as dancing in their seats. The August line-up is sure to continue the dance fest. Check out the vendors surrounding the Goudy Park amphitheatre selling food and other enticing items. The Wayne Rotary has a 50/50 raffle as well as a place you may purchase beer. Angie and Kurt Jarman of Kurt's Caps in Wayne have the popcorn popper poppin' while they hand out bags of free popcorn; they do have a donation bucket if you would like to donate towards future concerts in the park. There is plenty of seating in the amphitheatre, but if you would like something more comfortable, it is suggested you bring your own chair. Come out and enjoy summer August nights in the park with your Wayne neighbors.

Fifty Amp Fuse

Remy Lambert (guitar, vocals, bandleader) and Bassist vocalist David Eversole formed FiftyAmp-Fuse in 2004. Remy says "There have been many 'spin-off' bands created by former members and others using our success in our brand to re-brand themselves as something else. We are not affiliated and/or do not endorse any of these spin-offs." The band pays tribute to the greatest hits of the 60s, 70s, 80s, 90s and 2000s while priding itself on the care and quality of the music and performance of every show.
